Dear Mr. M.,

Sorry it has taken so long to respond. I have no help, more than I can do, and I did not rush with yours as compared with other letters I have to answer besides trying to do all the other work others inherit because while you said you'd be willing to pay the costs you were not considerate enough to include a self-addressed envelope.

When at 62 I still start work as I did today at 3:35 a.m. moments mean much, as does thoughtlessness.

It has also been my experience that the various committees like yours, while well and sincerely motivated, lack the basic knowledge and understanding required to avoid what turns outs to be irresponsible and helps destroy all credibility.

I do hope you are the exception!

When they also do not tell me that they have and have mastered the only basic work still available, can you wonder if I wonder?

Anyway, there it is. I hope you don't find the solution to the crime in it.

Sincerely,

Harold Weisberg
